

Summer Camps in Virginia

Program Name:	CompuTech Camp
Address:	Helen A. Kellar Institute for Human disAbilities Computer Camps (MS-1F2) 4400 University Drive Fairfax, Virginia 22030
Telephone:	703/993-3680 FAX 703/993-3681 Email: compcamp@gmu.edu Website: www.kihd.gmu.edu/camps
Contact Person:	Allison Toguchi
Type of Service:	Summer camp (day)
Location Served:	Northern Virginia
Families Served:	Families of children using AAC devices
Ages Served:	Children in grades 7 through 12
Fee Schedule:	$350
Program Description:	CompuTech is for students in grades 7 through 12 that use speech generating augmentative communication devices (AAC). This camp is not designed for beginning AAC users, but for those users who need to develop new vocabulary and strategies to interact with their peers. Campers are able to meet and socialize with other teens that use AAC devices. Graduate students in George Mason's Special Education program will provide each camper with a personalized experience that will begin in the classroom and transition into the community. Our goal is to have campers learn more ways to use their communication systems, while having fun and developing new friendships. Year 2006 CompuTech dates are July 17, 19, and 21. Call for further information.
