Program Description:	River's Way runs a variety of programs with a major focus on youth outdoor adventure activities through school programs and week-long summer camps. These programs are designed to get disabled and non-disabled young people involved in recreational activities that emphasize team building, adventure, and inclusion. Open enrollment ensures a mix of abilities in each group. Of the 12 campers in a group, three to six will usually have disabilities. Rafting, caving, hiking, climbing, and community services challenge each person according to ability levels. There are activity options for differing abilities built into each program. Call for yearly program and camp schedule and for further information.
