

About the Training

This one-day training is offered by the Partnership for People with Disabilities in response to the following realities:

- ❖ Children with disabilities are at increased risk for all types of abuse and neglect.
- ❖ Abuse and neglect of these children occurs more often in out-of-family settings.
- ❖ It can be more difficult to recognize abuse or neglect of children with disabilities.
- ❖ Many professionals are unaware of specific risk factors and indicators of abuse and neglect for children with disabilities.
- ❖ Many professionals are unfamiliar with the special needs of children with disabilities.
- ❖ Children with disabilities experience a "cascade of injustices" following abuse and neglect, in which their reports are not believed, or are not investigated, or are not prosecuted.
- ❖ Children with disabilities may not receive adequate treatment for the effects of abuse and neglect.

Trainers

This course is presented by an interdisciplinary team of expert trainers, including an educator, a law enforcement officer, child protective services professional, and a parent advocate for children with disabilities.

Trainers model interdisciplinary collaboration and foster discussion among participants about ways to improve the local collaborative response to abuse and neglect of children with disabilities.

Continuing Education Credits and Partial In-service Credit for Law Enforcement available.

Target Audience

This training is appropriate for all professionals who serve children with disabilities, including:

- ❖ Educators
- ❖ Child Protective Services
- ❖ Law enforcement
- ❖ Foster care
- ❖ Children's Advocacy Center
- ❖ CASA staff and volunteers
- ❖ Community Services Board staff
- ❖ Multidisciplinary Team members
- ❖ Guardians ad litem

Questions addressed in the training:

The Abuse and Disabilities Training Project began in 1997 with federal funding to develop a model interdisciplinary curriculum for educators, child protection workers, law enforcement officers, and parents of children with disabilities. Since 2000, this interdisciplinary training has been offered by the Partnership for People with Disabilities in a number of localities throughout Virginia, with the co-sponsorship of VISSTA (Virginia Institute for Social Services Training Activities), the Virginia Department of Education, the Virginia Department for Criminal Justice Services, and the Virginia Department of Social Services.

Original support for this training was provided by a grant from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services to the Partnership for People with Disabilities, formerly the Virginia Institute for Developmental Disabilities (VIDD) at Virginia Commonwealth University (VCU). The Partnership is the University Center for Excellence for Developmental Disabilities (UCE) at VCU, which is an equal opportunity/affirmative action institution providing access to education and employment without regard to age, race, color, national origin, gender, religion, sexual orientation, veteran's status, political affiliation, or disability. If special accommodations or alternative document formats are needed, please contact Peggy O'Neill at 804-828-3876.
